Programme

The IP "Promised Lands. Cities, citizens and citizenship across the euro-mediterranean", starting from the analysis of the historical phenomenon of the founding city of the euro-mediterranean, and using a multidisciplinary approach, aims to provide students with a reflection on European policies of contemporary citizenship and the possible changes and improvements applicable to them.

Indeed, the experience of networks of planned communities and cities implemented in many Mediterranean countries, between the sixteenth and the twentieth century, represents a paradigmatic device combining territorial development, social cohesion, ecological enhancement, economic development and creation of a sense of shared identity.

Participating in the course, as partners (teachers and students):

- Brandenburgische Technische Universität Cottbus-Senftenberg;
- Universidade de Lisboa technique;
- Universidad of Primorska (Slovenia);
- Universidad Nacional de Educación a Distancia (Spain).
